Thoughts from the Lay Director...

IN GOD'S HANDS

The Lord says, "Can a woman forget her nursing child, or show no compassion for the child of her womb? Even these may forget, yet I will not forget you. See, I have inscribed you on the palms of my hands."

- Isaiah 49:15-16 (NRSV)

Dear Community,

As I sought the Lord concerning this month's newsletter, the subject did not make sense to me. Today, the word "paradox" came to me. When I looked it up, indeed that is exactly what I have. Wikipedia, the online encyclopedia, defines it like this: A paradox is an apparently true statement or group of statements that leads to a contradiction or a situation, which defies intuition. Typically, either the statements in question do not really imply the contradiction, the puzzling result is not really a contradiction, or the premises themselves are not all really true or cannot all be true together. The word paradox is often used interchangeably and wrongly with contradiction; but whereas a contradiction asserts its own opposite, many paradoxes do allow for resolution of some kind.

As a result of last month's letter from the Community Lay Director, many of you did indeed step up and volunteer to fill positions. Several more people agreed to enter the election for the Board of Directors, and I understand about 12 individuals attended the Chrysalis steering committee meeting. These are just two examples of your response. Thank you, and God bless you for that.

It is encouraging to me that so many of you take ownership of this community. You see a need and you fill it. You donate time and resources for the good of all in the community, and so God's work can move forward. That is where the paradox comes in. That word ownership. We need to treat this community in a way as if we own it. We need to take responsibility for it, and our actions in it. We need to love it and nurture it like it is a part of us. For me it is a part of me. Just ask anyone close to me. Emmaus and the people in the community are on my mind all of the time.

BUT... This is not my community and it is not yours, it is God's. It is His tool for strengthening His church and His chosen leadership in those churches. I thank God for that. Because when problems arise they are not my problems they are His. It is not my battle it is His, and He is God all by Himself! I find they are not really problems at all but, opportunities to see God work.

They are opportunities to see another miracle. For those that say He doesn't perform miracles anymore, I have to say, they just aren't paying attention! The battle is His, and who or what can stand against Him?

We are His hands and feet. We are the shoulder that gives comfort. We are the voice that edifies and builds one another up and give encouragement in adversity. The answer to the paradox seems to be, that we are His. And yes we need to "own" the community, and it's work. But He owns us all. Paid for by His suffering and shedding His blood on the cross.

This leads me to one more thought. One thing I see and hear in the community, which causes me great anguish, is when members of the community do not get along. Division in the community is the work of the enemy. Whether you define the enemy as Satan and his minions, or your definition is the self-centered nature in human beings, it is the stuff that causes great harm. It is the attack that comes from within. It is a poor witness to the unbelievers that are looking on from outside the family of God. I see and hear almost on a monthly basis someone who says I won't participate because I don't like the person leading that walk. Or I have something against that board member. "He or she acts so unchristian" Let's get a grip on reality! The Bible tells me we have ALL fallen short of the glory of God. We are all sinners. We are imperfect people trying to do the will of a perfect God. Have I always made the right decision? Absolutely not! But I made the best decision I could, based on the information I had at hand and my relationship with God. I am sure that the same thing is true of others in the community. The beauty and strength of this Emmaus community is our different backgrounds, churches, denominations, and yes even the color of our skin. Don't let the thing that makes this a model, of the body of Christ, become our stumbling block. Ironically these are not the differences that cause the greatest division. It is the harsh word, the misunderstood motive or a momentary lapse in judgment between friends.

A wise elderly woman once said to me "Give much mercy and grace, for you have received much." Forgiveness is the cure for the illness that is mentioned above. God forgave our sin. All of it! Jesus paid the debt He did not owe, because we owed a debt we could not pay! Go and give someone grace and forgiveness today!

De Colores,
Mark Lawrence/CLD 2006-2007

Board News...

The Board met on April 14, 2007 at 3:30 just prior to the gathering at Hillcrest UMC. There was a quorum present.

The board approved the purchase of another overhead projector and some spare bulbs as one of our projectors developed a short, which we could not seem to fix.

We had a report from our nominating committee concerning the candidates that had agreed to be placed on the ballot for board membership. We also discussed the candidates and qualifications of board officers as we prepare for the election of those officers in May.

There was much discussion concerning the role of the new team selection committee and the way it will interact and cooperate with the Weekend Lay Director as well as other members of the cadre. Final action on the motion was tabled until the May meeting.

I gave a report concerning recent actions by the National Upper Room Emmaus organization. We will be required to have training from our regional representative before the end of the year in order to comply with our covenant. This training is required at least once every three years and will include both clergy and lay leadership. There are a number of concerns about the rules and expectations of the Upper Room. However we decided we would see what the trainers have to say when they actually get here. It is expected that this training will not take place until September or later.

The meeting was adjourned about 5:25 PM

From the Board Treasurer:

IRS Changes for 2007

Starting in January, to claim a deduction on your itemized tax return, the IRS is making it complicated. Taxpayers will need to provide backup in order to claim a deduction on their tax return; no more "lists" will be accepted. The taxpayer must provide a canceled check(s), bank record or a receipt from the charity listing the organization's name, the date of the donation and the amount. Beginning January 2007, we began tracking and recording all checks received as donations to the General and Scholarship funds. Please consult with your accountant or tax preparer on the deductibility of your Team and Sponsorship fees for charitable contributions. Monthly letters or annual statements will be mailed regardless of the donation amount.

If you would like credit for your cash donations made at Gatherings, Candlelight, Sponsors Hour, and Closings, please place the cash in an envelope marked with your name, address and amount. If you have any questions, please do not hesitate to contact me at 540-786-3038.

God bless, Monica Warne

Reflections from some recent Chrysalis Butterflies

My Weekend at Chrysalis By Ashley Bell

My weekend at Richmond Chrysalis was amazing. I have never met a more wonderful group of people. All the girls that I met were very special to me. Everyone got so close by the end of the weekend that nobody was ready to leave. I know that I wanted to stay forever. It was so neat how we were all on God's time and everything is much more relaxed that way. If only everyday was on His time there would be no more rushing. Another thing is, I have never felt so much love in my entire life. I could feel everyone's love that was there, but most of the love I felt was coming from God. His love is so awesome and the best part is it is unending.

Our theme song for the weekend was Unending Love. I had heard the term before but never understood it until now. God loves you every minute of the day. He will never stop loving you.

I wish the weekend had gone slower because I wanted to stay longer. I felt so connected with God that weekend. I pray every night, or try to, and I go to church but I never felt His love and closeness like I did those three days. On Friday night when we nailed our sins to the cross and burnt them, God's love was so overwhelming. Everyone was crying but they were happy tears because we were free from our burdens. After I had done that I could feel God there, helping me through that. I thank Him so much for that. I just hope that everyone can experience what I did on that amazing weekend.

Flight 43 By Kate Klaus

I attended Flight 43 in March, in Richmond. I'll be the first to admit I wasn't particularly thrilled with the idea of being stuck

Christ hath made us
free.

Galatians 5:1

with 20 other girls I didn't know, or away from a place and routine that I was familiar with.

All I could think about on the way down there was how this seemed like the first day of freshman year all over again. I wasn't sure if the other girls would like me or if I would make friends. Yet when I arrived, the girls welcomed our group with open arms. It's an amazing feeling you get when you've only known someone for 4 hours and they suddenly feel like one of your childhood friends.

I wouldn't trade this experience for anything, and in the end I'm glad I decided to go. The endless agape from the community and love from all the girls has helped to show me that it doesn't matter who you are or what you've done, but how you "let go, and let Christ."
